Subject: Commentary on Microsoft's monopoly position

It is incredible to someone outside the US, that Microsoft have been able to routinely break the law to maximise profit. Existing sentencing is obviously not having the desired preventative effect.

There is even some spin put on the existence of a Microsoft monopoly. Of course they have a monopoly. Just try to buy an x86 laptop without paying for Windows. Can't be done.

Thank you for taking the step of making a feedback e-mail address available.
